

Carsten Steinhoff

Dr Carsten Steinhoff is Head of Operational Risk at NORD/LB. He studied bank management and controlling at the University of Goettingen (Germany) and received his diploma in Economy in 2004. After an internship at Commerzbank in Italy he started his practical work in the Risk-Controlling department at NORD/LB. From 2004 till 2008 he followed an on-the-job Ph.D. program and wrote his thesis on “Operational Risk Quantification”. Since 2008 he is in charge of the OpRisk department. During his engagement for NORD/LB he actively worked at the kickoff project for foundation of the German data consortium DakOR. Mr Steinhoff gained deep experience with the data and their practical use and furthermore worked in a project to launch the first collection of external data in Germany from public sources (ÖffSchOR). He is member in various operational risk workgroups and wrote several articles on operational risk topics.

Mr Steinhoff is 33 years old, married and father of a 2 ½ year old daughter.